LOOKS LIKE TWO-THIRDS.

MR. STEPHENS'S MAJORITY STILL CLIMBING UP STAIRS.

County After County Lays a Tribute at the Great Commoner's Feet—The People Demand that the Majority Shall Rule—Bestowing Preference for Congressmen-at-Large.

The returns received yesterday continue to sustain the estimate made by THE CONSTITUTION. Mr. Stephens has 188½ of the votes reported, against 112½ for Bacon and the field, with an equal showing for the commoner in the field. The majority rule is certainly carried, having 128 votes instructed in its favor, against only 66 for the two-thirds rule. But the returns will speak for themselves.

AN EXPLANATION FROM STEPHENS.

ATLANTA, July 6.—The delegates elected on Tuesday, as telegraphed you, are opposed to Mr. Stephens. J. P. Sawtell, Captain M. C. Edwards, J. J. McDonald, O. J. Barry are opposed to Mr. Stephens generally, and we can't out who they prefer. E. D. Crozier, after Hon. A. Bacon, and Colonel R. F. Crittenden will, we learn, support Mr. Stephens if he has a decided majority. The delegates, so far as are known, have no decided preference for congressmen-at-large. Some of the delegates will cheerfully support Hon. Thomas Hardeman, if his name is presented to the convention. The majority rule is recommended by the convention assembled here yesterday by a vote of 50 to 18, and it is to be presumed that the delegates will respect and obey the wishes of the people in this particular.

Special Dispatch to the Constitution.

VALDOSTA, July 6.—The democrats of Lowndes county held a mass meeting in the court-house on Tuesday. An organization was effected by the election of Colonel P. B. Wadsworth, chairman, and Mr. T. Mydleton, secretary. The first business in order was the election of delegates to the gubernatorial convention. Captain A. H. Smith and J. B. Withers were put in nomination as bacon men, while B. P. Jones and C. H. M. Howell ran as Stephens' men. The Bacon delegates were elected. Mr. J. O. Varnadoe moved the adoption of the following resolution, which passed by an unanimous vote, viz.: That our delegates be instructed to support Mr. Bacon, but it is the sense of this convention that they should esteem the integrity of the party as a matter superior to the claims of any candidate. A resolution was adopted instructing the delegates to vote for the two-thirds rule and recommending that the same obtain in all future state and county conventions. Hon. A. T. McIntyre was recommended, and the delegates will support him for congress from the state at large. Captain Mitchell Jones and Mr. C. R. Peacock were selected to represent this county in the congressional convention. The delegation will be in the majority are thought to be anti-Stephens. The majority rule was adopted unanimously.

A GIRL'S FORETHOUGHT.

How Colonel Streight's Command was Captured During the War.
To the Editor of the Brooklyn Eagle.

In the month of May, 1863, the army of the Cumberland, under the command of Rosecrans, lay at Chattanooga. General Garfield, the chief of staff, to the commanding general, being anxious to strike a blow at the railroad system of Georgia, persuaded Rosecrans to authorize the fitting out of a raiding expedition against Rome in that state. Garfield undertook, with joyous anticipations, the formation of the force, and it was at his suggestion that Colonel Streight was placed in command of the expedition, consisting of nearly two thousand picked soldiers. With what success this federal force made its raid on Rome and just how much of the railroad system of the empire state of the south Colonel Streight contrived to destroy are matters of familiar history.

The raiders reached Rome, it is true, but they were prisoners of the brave General Forrest, who, with a brave little band of four hundred men, ill clad and poorly fed, sent the whole invading force to Richmond over the way, all the time, and, as far as he could, offers less resistance to the wind—an important consideration.

News from Iceland states that the Spitzerberg ice surrounds the north and east coasts, entirely preventing navigation. Owing to the presence of these immense ice fields, vegetation has made no progress, causing a great loss of horses and sheep through starvation. Epidemics of measles and small pox have been introduced into the island among the population; the former is especially prevalent in Reykjavik.

The capture of Streight by Forrest, as before stated, is familiar history; but who has been introduced to Miss Emma Sansom, the brave Gadsden girl of sixteen summers, by whose forethought and prompt action the capture was made possible? The great war developed many deeds of daring on the part of women on both sides of the contest, but it seems to me that the heroic conduct of Miss Sansom deserves a special chapter in the history of female courage and of womanly devotion to a cause she believed to be just. So far as known, there has never been any recognition of the value of her services, except on the part of General Forrest in his official report. The state of Alabama did, indeed, vote her a section of land, but has never been able to convey her a valid title to the same.

The part Miss Emma took in the dramatic pursuit of Colonel Streight by Forrest's force may be briefly stated. Hard by her humble home was a stream which, on the suggestive name of "Reyka," means "the smoke." At the date of this story this stream was greatly swollen from heavy rains. Colonel Streight, after passing over the bridge took care to burn it. Forrest was at his heels, but finding no means of crossing the Black creek, gravely meditated an abandonment of the pursuit. Riding up to Mrs. Sansom's house to spend the night he was quickly informed by her that in a secluded spot a mile distant up the creek a ford could be found for his cavalry, which would enable him to cross and continue his march. Started at once, he rode rapidly, and, having questioned her to accompany him and point out the place, no time was to be lost, and though G. C. M. right-skirters were firing across the creek, which now appeared as a mighty river, Miss Emma at once consented to go. Having no horse of her own she vaulted up behind Forrest, and bravely exposed her life to the bullets of the enemy, while the general led his men under her guidance to the welcome ford.

The sequel can be told in few words. She remained on the bank of Black creek long enough to see the rest of the army pass, and then, with her dog Lamb, started the gallant party, God speed, and an splendid victory. Returning home through the open fields again, she sent up a silent prayer for the capture of Colonel Streight and his raiders. The answer to that prayer was not long delayed. Two days later, while in camp cooking, eating and carousing, little dreaming that Forrest was on the Rome side of Black creek, Colonel Streight's entire command were themselves raided and forced to surrender. No wonder General Streight, on learning of his capture, said: "I am sold!" Emma Sansom must have been an exceedingly beautiful girl. One of her former lovers describes her as "a lovely blonde, with clear, sparkling blue eyes and long, flowing golden hair." She was of medium height, of fine form, and in her movements quick and graceful. She is now the happy mother of three children, in the flourishing state of Texas.

SOLDIERS IN OFFICE.

Figures from the Report of a Senate Committee—The Blue and the Gray.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—Senator Harrison, from the special committee appointed to find out whether the rule requiring preference to be given to disabled soldiers in making appointments in the civil service, and other appointments in the government, had been enforced, reports that there are no employees by the secretary of the senate, four union soldiers, of whom two were wounded, and six confederates, of whom one was wounded, seventeen employees were in neither army.

The number of male employees under the sergeant-at-arms, not including the senate pages, is 107. Of these, nine are messengers nominated by the committees which they serve, and appointed by the sergeant-at-arms. Of these, Mr. Bright has marked seventeen as disabled, and thus there are twenty per cent of his force, as having served in the union army, and sixteen persons, or little less than fifteen per cent, in the confederate army.

The average per cent of soldiers and sailors employed in the different executive departments in the government is fifteen per cent. There are thirty-six clerks and assistants employed by the clerk of the house, of whom seventeen, of a little more than 10 per cent, served in the union army and one in the confederate army. The sergeant-at-arms in the house, reports that of the seven employees in his office, five, or a little more than 71 per cent, served in the union army. The door-keeper of the house reports that of ninety employees on the permanent roll forty-seven served in the union army, and thirty in the confederate army. Among the pages there are fourteen who are the sons of union soldiers. It will be seen that of the total number of employees in the offices of the clerk, sergeant-at-arms, and door-keeper of the house of representatives nearly 53 per cent were union soldiers.

The statements of the heads of departments, as embodied in the committee report, show that in the treasury department, out of 1,548 appointments, and reappointments, from March, 1877, to March, 1882, 503 were persons who either served in military or naval service, and were honorably discharged, or were widows or orphans of soldiers or sailors. In the post office department, out of a total force of 496, 138 were either soldiers or sailors during the late war. In the attorney general's office about 25 per cent of the force are reported to be ex-soldiers. In the navy department, 72, or about thirty-four per cent of the employees, served in the army or navy during the late war. In the department of state about 25 per cent of a total force of about 80 males clerks are discharged soldiers, and in the diplomatic and consular service not less than 40 per cent of the whole number are reported as honorary discharged union soldiers.

ATLANTA, GA., JULY 7, 1882.

The signal service bureau report indicates for South Atlantic states to-day, fair weather, light variable winds mostly southerly, stationary or higher temperature and pressure.

ONE of the most noted local sales of the year was that of the Atlanta cotton factory. So far as the general public is concerned with the sale, its chief interest lies in the cessation of work, which it is to be hoped will be brief.

THERE is always something interesting when there is a republican convention to be reported. That of yesterday was no exception to the regular order of things. The proceedings make mighty interesting reading, as Horace Greeley used to say.

Two very dubious measures have been shelved, namely: the post-office savings bank system and the national bankruptcy bill. Both will go over to the short session, and if both should then go overboard, the country would have two less doubtful experiments on hand.

Mr. WHITTHORNE can call Robeson liar and perjurer all day, as he did in congress yesterday, and the colossal fraud from New Jersey will not mind it. Robeson is a liar, a swindler and a republican leader, and he knows it and will not so far forget himself as to like most men under the same circumstances.

It is evident that Controller Pattison is a remarkably strong man, and that he is greatly favored by the republicans of Pennsylvania or the proposals which come from the Cameron side, that the regular and independent republican nominees shall withdraw and one new coalition set be nominated, would not be made. It remains to be seen how strong the independent feeling is. If the proposal is accepted it means a continuance of Cameron rule.

Tea as a Georgia product seems to be taking an upward movement. A Bhea plant, according to the Bainbridge Democrat, has thriven through wet and dry, cold and heat, and has had three or four annual crops of leaves which are free from worms or insects. Moreover the small plant has now become a shrub of seven and a half feet high with eight feet spread. A few more such plants as this would prove that tea can flourish in Georgia, which is indeed already true.

The LeConte pear company is probably unique in the annals of stock companies. It is not likely that there exists anywhere else than in Thomasville a company devoted to the cultivation of pear trees of a particular kind. The fact that the capital stock of this company was entirely taken up at once by men whose names are evidence of shrewdness, ability and knowledge as fruit growers is proof that the success and future of the LeConte pear is fully believed in by our fruit growers.

CONGRESS will of course authorize the secretary of the treasury to place a loan of $200,000 at two per cent. A one-per-cent bill would be even more popular. But it is seriously thought that the banks which hold about $250,000,000 in redeemable bonds will absorb the two per cents, as they can well afford to do. The privileges and partial exemption from taxation which the national banks enjoy, enables them to fund money in two per cent that other people cannot. The four per cents do not at present rates bear over 2½ per cent interest. They are now quoted at 12%, and this premium has to be charged off in the course of twenty five years.

The imam's brother has rebelled against the imam. The nature of the grievance of the imam's brother is not stated in the cablegram that brings the news, but it is presumably a desire on his part to enjoy the power and luxuries of his more successful brother. The coveted place is that of Muscat, and Oman is the capital of the states of Muscat, which is away down in eastern Arabia. The city of Muscat is a port on the Indian ocean, and a town of considerable commercial importance. At this writing we do not know whether to wish the imam or the imam's rebellious brother success in his undertakings. We are not, as we have already stated, fully up on Muscat politics.

EX-SOLDIERS of both sides in the late war are fairly well represented in the departments at Washington, according to Senator Harrison's report. The sergeant-at-arms of the senate, for instance, has seventeen ex-federal and sixteen ex-confederate soldiers out of a list of 107 of his employees. The clerk of the house has forty per cent of ex-federal soldiers and one per cent ex-confederate soldiers. So the proportion varies and runs as shown by the senator's report. It is a remarkable showing, taken all in all, and in reality seems to mark how great a proportion of citizens took active part in "the late unpleasantness." The offices held are generally such as no one would or should begrudge an old soldier, no matter which side he fought on.

THE CONSTITUTION'S COUNT. The anti-Stephens newspapers are already trying to console themselves by throwing doubt on THE CONSTITUTION's returns.

This is an old trick. It has been tried in many former campaigns. In the Colquitt convention we predicted that Colquitt would open with 222 votes. He opened with 216 and closed with 228. We predicted that his majority would be at least 36,000. It was actually 54,000. So it is at present. We predicted that Mr. Stephens would open with 206 votes or more. It now looks as if he will open with considerably more.

As to the tables we print this morning, they are as accurate as it is possible to make them. We have published what our correspondents sent us without amendment or change. To THE CONSTITUTION it is really more important that we should give the news accurately and promptly than that we should elect every politician that ever asked office. Therefore, our tables now, as always, represent exactly the status of things as we get it. We have already asked any delegate who finds himself or his county reported inaccurately in our columns to report the inaccuracy over his name, and we will correct it. We repeat this request this morning. Our lists are as correct as we can make them. The delegates, and the delegates alone, can change it.

The vote by the convention when it assembled in Atlanta on the 19th of July will justify THE CONSTITUTION's estimate in this case as it has always done before. In the Colquitt campaign we waited for our justification for several weeks while our estimates were being ridiculed and attacked daily. Having done this, we can certainly wait for the twelve days that intervene between this morning and the morning on which the convention will assemble and the votes of the delegates will be cast as will be done in accordance with THE CONSTITUTION's report.

PRACTICAL AESTHETISM.

There are some points in Oscar Wilde's Atlanta lecture worth remembering and reflecting about. It is worth while to remember, for instance, that his aestheticism is of the robust school—that the art for which he pleads is not the overfed, idle, fastidious sort which foolish young men and simpering young ladies have been in the habit of associating with a rather vague and strained application—a vulgar application—we may go further and say of the term "aesthetic."

The commentators and the caricaturists, missing the humor in the travesties of Du Maurier and the burlesques of Gilbert, have interpreted matters to suit themselves. Thus, when one New York editor asks, "What is aesthetic?" another promptly replies: "The art of dawdling." This certainly hits the popular comprehension; but Mr. Wilde shows that he by no means deserves the ridicule which has been lavished upon his lectures. At the same time, it must be confessed that his Atlanta lecture is a great improvement as to method and purpose over the lectures he delivered in New York and Boston—unless, in deed, the newspaper reporters in those cities were careful to suppress the practical allusions and suggestions which, all things considered, might naturally be supposed to grate harshly upon the nerves of those who have been raised upon his lectures. At the same time, it must be confessed that his Atlanta lecture is a great improvement as to method and purpose over the lectures he delivered in New York and Boston—unless, in deed, the newspaper reporters in those cities were careful to suppress the practical allusions and suggestions which, all things considered, might naturally be supposed to grate harshly upon the nerves of those who have been raised upon his lectures.

GOVERNOR A. H. STEPHENS—Dear Sir: Permit THE CONSTITUTION to congratulate you on the verdict rendered by the people of Georgia on the anniversary of the promulgation of the first platform of the Jeffersonian democracy. Yours truly,

THE HON. DAVID MOAT, who is now serving out a term in the Pennsylvania penitentiary, is entitled to a Grant badge. Dave is not lonely in the penitentiary. He is there surrounded by a large and congenial faction of his party.

THE FRIENDS OF MR. STEPHENS—Dear Sir: Have already congratulated him on the result of the democratic primaries in Georgia. These congratulations were not premature—on the contrary, they were very timely.

IT is rumored that the state department has informed that a number of Egyptians have attacked our war-tub at Alexandria and completely riddled her with ripe tomatoes. All hands are at the pumps.

DORSEY has threatened to sue all the newspapers in the country. It will be remembered that Mr. Dorsey is just as honest as any other practicing republican.

AN EXCHANGE says that Mr. Robeson is the step-father of the American navy." The comparison is unfortunate. Who ever heard of a step-father running off with one of his wife's children?

THEIR are terrible whisvers in some of the papers in regard to the alleged crookedness of the amiable Rogers while he was private secretary of the insignificant administrator.

TRULY, the fourth of July was a day to be celebrated by the Jeffersonians. How eagerly the opportunity was seized in Georgia let the record tell.

IT is thought that John Sherman is end avoring to coax Mr. Hayes to run for president again. Hayes has agreed time for deliberation.

FEAKING of the Atlanta "ring" it is hardly necessary to state that the people belong to it by a large majority.

MR. STEPHENS' well-known skill will be very useful when the July convention meets.

THE MAJORITY for Mr. Stephens and the Georgia crop are about the same size.

Or the roller-chair, it may be said that as she slips she slides along.

THINKS that its town is the best place for the holding of another cotton exposition. "Louisville," says the Courier Journal, "was considering the practicability of a cotton exposition at this point when Atlanta, with her characteristic energy, took hold of the project, enlisted the co-operation of the railroads, aroused local and state pride, obtained a little aid—very little, indeed—from other cities, and gave an exhibition which attracted the attention and earned the admiration of the whole country. The celebrity with which Atlanta moved fairly took our breath away, and we think there are a number of us who have not fully recovered from the shock received when we realized how near we had come to stumbling into a great enterprise." The former candidacy of Louisville should give it precedence now, all other things being equal. We believe in truth that Louisville is altogether the best point at which a second and grander exposition can be held. A southern exposition should be held in the first place be held in southern soil. If held at Louisville it will be in the tobacco belt instead of the cotton belt; and it is thought that it would be advisable to combine tobacco, wool and silk with cotton in order to present in a fuller manner the possibilities of the south. Louisville, too, is in a populous district, and is a point of converging northern and southern railroad lines. It is between the two sections, and vast numbers would visit an exposition in a border city that could not afford a trip to a point in the cotton states. We wholly agree with our esteemed Louisville contemporaries, when it says that if a second exposition is to be held Louisville should be allowed to undertake it.

THE COURIER-JOURNAL desires a free discussion relative to the time of holding it. It regards 1883 as too near at hand; the following year will be perplexed with a presidential campaign, and it intimates that 1885 is, all things considered, the best date. But even if it is postponed until 1885, the steps for raising the needed amount of money should be taken, plans prepared, and the work well in hand before the opening of 1884. The celebrity of Atlanta in 1881 is much praised, but that very feature greatly dwarfed and marred the first cotton exposition. It could not well be otherwise, and if Louisville means business—and we hope she does—her people should perfect an organization and prepare a general programme at once.

"WAS JEFFERSON right?" asks the Springfield Republican. Unquestionably he was, and so is Mr. Stephens. But Mr. Stephens has this advantage over Mr. Jefferson, to-wit: the latter can never be governor of Georgia, while the people have just declared that they are in favor of Mr. Stephens.

THE TALK about the "ring" and "cabal," has been dropped and now there is a considerable splinter over the two-thirds rule. The anti-Stephens organ ought to bear in mind that the people will have their way in this matter as in other matters.

A REPUBLICAN WRANGLE.THE COUNTY CONVENTION HELD YESTERDAY.

A Lively Lot of Doing by the Assembled Wisdom of the Republican Party in Fulton Delegates to the State Convention and Other Matters—Two Sets of Delegates.

The room of the United States circuit court was thrown open yesterday and the republican county convention was held therein. The convention was for the purpose of electing delegates to the state convention which meets in August. There was a full representation of all the wards and districts in the county. The morning was as cool as a new spring day and the breeze which fanned the faces of the delegates and spectators was as fresh and as pleasant as could be. Everything was serene and nothing suggested in the slightest way a brewing row. John Conley, of the county executive committee, sat in the chair behind a small table outisde the bar. He was cool. To his left sat H. A. Rucker, a colored man, with some documents in his hands and he was cool. Colonel John E. Bryant was there and he was cool. The delegates and the spectators were cool. In the rear of the assembly sat George McKinney. His coat collar was turned up as if he was very cool. It was a cool convention and there were no members of the public but themselves numbering tens that gave no evidence of their presence. Chairman Conley, after a pause of a full minute, arose and asked the meeting to come to order. The request appeared superfluous, as the delegates were as dumb as oysters, and quiet as mice, but in order to do as far as possible oblige the chairman, each one looked as dignified as he could, and all breathed slowly and with great regularity. Mr. Conley stated the object of the meeting and read the list of delegates. The election of a temporary chairman was the first business in order. John Shelton, colored, was nominated. Conley put the question, "Is the motion carried?" Shelton clapped his hands and said, "Amen." At that time half the delegates were trying to speak and the tenor of the voices seemed to be that Conley was trying to choke the convention and not give the members a fair showing. Treadwell, a colored man, said that he never heard of a chairman shutting off nominations in that way. Colonel Bryant wanted an election. He said there was no regularly elected chairman. Wim bush and John Longstreet and several others tried to speak and the uproar continued. In two minutes from the time that the first word was spoken the erstwhile cool crowd was hot as an August sun.

CONLEY IN THE CHAIR.
John Conley took the chair again and began rapping on the desk with a big stick. The call of the roll was asked for. Conley declined to have it called. Rucker grabbed the list of delegates and tried to call their names. John Conley tried to drown his voice by beating furiously on the table with a stick. Rucker jumped on the table and continued the call. Several delegates standing in a chain and yelling. In fact, there was a good deal of yelling done. Finally Shelton made a speech declining to be made the cause of the row any longer and quiet was restored. He and Rev. Jerry Jones were nominated and Jones was elected. In the midst of the row A. Watts said he was tired of so much gas. A voice: "Then you had better go home and let your people send somebody here who won't get tired of gas!" While Conley was trying to get in his work J. H. Brown, editor of the Defiance, shouted at him: "You are trying to run over the people and you know you are!"

A COMMITTEE OF SEVEN.

A committee of seven was appointed on credentials, and J. H. Brown was elected secretary of the convention. A committee on permanent organization was appointed. Both committees retired and during their absence speeches were made by R. H. Carter, Jackson McHenry, Shelton and others. The committee on organization reported a set of rules, which were adopted. A committee on credentials was also appointed. A discussion of the affairs of the attending delegations took place, and speeches were made by Wim bush, Howard Morton, Colonel Bryant and Moses Bentley, Treadwell and others. Upon the motion to adopt, the report of the committee, the vote stood, ayes 25, nays 10.

While the yeas and nays were being called another row came up. Wim bush, among other things, charged that the whole thing was cocked and primed. There was more yelling than at any other time in the day, with cries of "go on," "sit down," "they will start a riot," etc. Yelling, shouting, groaning and clapping of hands drowned everything that was said, and after the announcement of the result of the vote the greatest possible confusion prevailed.

M. Alston made a powerful appeal for order. He said that the disorder had been disgraceful, and that he wished that he could take all the notes that the reporters had taken and put them in the fire. His speech did not have a soothing effect. The uproar continued, and amid the noise the committee on permanent organization reported in favor of the Society of the Alumni in the afternoon. Reception at night. Wednesday, commencement Day.

LAWMAKERS IN SESSION.

Only a small crowd was in the room when the chairman called the meeting to order at 2 o'clock. A committee of one was, on motion, sent out to see if the committee on credentials was ready to report. It was found that the committee would be ready to report in about three minutes. While waiting for the report of the committee Aleck Mattison made an address on the prospects and policy of the republican party. He believed that the people of Georgia were bound to rise and restore the republican democracy from its place. At the conclusion of his address A. A. Watson moved that the convention hear from Captain Bentley. The committee coming in, the speech making was put to an end and the report was read by the chairman J. R. Treadwell, colored. The following were the legal delegates reported:

First Ward—Dr. Treadwell, J. E. Lester, Joe Frank, D. C. McWhorter, J. J. Peck, H. G. Gunn, W. F. Fuller, J. H. Brown, J. Thornton, H. G. Gunn, W. F. Fuller, J. F. Thompson, W. E. Day, J. L. Lanier, A. Watts, W. B. T. E. Walker, J. W. B. Jones, D. Moore, E. Ward—A. E. Buck, D. Howard, J. M. Fowler, E. L. Simon, Mike Mitchell, R. H. Carter, G. W. Steele, A. Martinson, H. Cole, C. McHenry.

On motion, the report of the committee was adopted, except so far as related to the contested delegations of the Fourth ward and the north Atlanta district.

A LIVELY DISCUSSION.
Treadwell proceeded to speak in reference to the election of the fourth ward delegation. Another row came up. About fourteen delegates addressed the chair. Parker tried to speak. Colonel Bryant told him he was not a delegate. Parker told him that he was as much a delegate as Bryant was. A motion was made to put the contending delegations out of the room until the legal delegation was settled upon. The motion was carried and the contending delegations were fired out. As they went out Fuller said that he would go and would say but one thing and that was that all who were in sympathy with the national administration would please meet him in one of the rooms below. Wim bush was made ex-Governor Conley's proxy and was allowed to remain. He tried to make a speech but was interrupted so much that he could not proceed for some time. At last he got in his speech which was against the firing out of the contesting delegations. He said that the men whose causes were being tried should be present. When he concluded the chairman explained the rule, that the delegates were to be represented in the city. Several orders for goods were also made upon Atlanta merchants by the wire.

The wire was used almost during the entire day yesterday by ladies at New Holland, wanted to communicate with their folks in the city. Several orders for goods were also made upon Atlanta merchants by the wire.

GO AND SEE
PICKERT'S JEWELRY BOOM!

Which was only started a few days ago, has already brought good results. His store, every one knows, is at No. 5 Whitehall street. It is crowded every day, and the sales foot up to Mr. Pickert's entire satisfaction, which compelled him to order a new stock of goods that will be open on Monday. If you are in want of a solid gold ring, etc. of

or a pair of bracelets, do not fail to call and see him. He has some magnificent designs in Ladies' Lockets and Bracelets. He has also received a large stock of the celebrated Meriden Britannia Co.'s gold and silver plated ware which will all be open on Monday. The Rogers Bros. Sport and Knives are the only Rogers Bros' goods which made the world-wide reputation, and are now manufactured by the Meriden Britannia Co. and for sale at my store. Not to induce to buy others not stamped A. Rogers Bros. AL.

A. F. PICKERT,
NO. 5 WHITEHALL STREET.

P. S.—A full line of the finest imported Spectacles and Eye-Glasses can also be found at my place, which I guarantee to give satisfaction for five years.

Stanton House.

The above house, located at West End, at the terminus of the street car line and in the enclosure surrounding this mineral spring, is now open for boarders. Parties desirous of being in a nice quiet neighborhood, where there are no disturbances, will do well to consult the advertisement of Mr. Stanton, to be found in another column.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Harry Fischer, of the First national bank at Newnan, was in town yesterday.
H. C. Hammon, Snook's head salesman, has gone to New York, the hero of the Florida alligator story, is back to Kimball.
Humphries street property at auction to-day. See description in 10c column and attend.

Miss Anna Anderson, S. C., is the most charming young lady of Anderson, S. C., is the guest of Mrs. W. H. Holcombe and Miss Neddie West.

Dr. W. E. Coleman leaves to-day for Montvale Springs, the Saratoga of the south. Any one wishing to see him on business, will call on Captain E. G. Roberts, 49 Peachtree street, who will represent him.

Mr. George M. Swan, of the well-known firm of Swan & Coville, cedar refiners and vinegar makers, N. S. South street, is in our city for a few days. He is a good, courteous business gentleman, represents a first-class house, and offers the publics good article of cedar and vinegar as can be found in any market.

Our Ramble—11 dwellings and 7 vacant lots at auction. See descriptions in 10c column. Friends & Leek.

Stanton House.

West End, Atlanta, is a popular spot for boarders; heated apartments, short car-line 24 miles from the main road; beautiful shaded grounds in the midst of which is the West End mineral spring, the waters of which are acknowledged superior to any within fifty miles of Atlanta. Terms moderate.

W. L. STANTON, Proprietor.

The telephone is working well, and the future prospects are bright. The telephone exchanges will have more subscribers than ever before, since the Telephone has been introduced.

Managerial position is always on the lookout for any trouble it may come across, and we are anxious to have our agents, lawyers, doctors, etc., to whom we would like information in regard to the telephone, terms of subscription, etc. The telephone subscribers and their friends are invited to visit the new exchange office, 42 and 44 Whitehall street, and see how subscribers are answered, connected, etc. There are 15,124 connections made last month. The exchange office is over Dr. C. Red's drug store corner Marietta and Broad streets. Offer to Marrian and broad streets. Offer always open.

July 6—F. W. Wylie & Co.

Messrs. B. F. Wylie & Co. and A. L. Greene, composing the firm of B. F. Wylie & Co., are receiving a very fine line of staple and fancy groceries. They are enterprising and popular wholesale merchants, and will do an extensive business. They are at 47 and 49 Alabama street.

July 6—Glen Mary Coal.

This is a very superior grade and stove coal from the Glen Mary mine, located in the mountains and introduced here last fall and winter by W. S. Wilson & Bro., who will handle it again this season. They find that it is a first-class coal in every particular, and is equal to any coal in the country. It burns free, burns no cinders, lasts well and makes much less dust and ashes than other grades of coal that is in the market. They have had numbers of letters from people who have tried it and recommended it to try this coal, and they all pronounce it to be equal to the Montvale, in every respect. This coal is well-mined; is in large lumps and free from slate and other impurities. If you want the best and cheapest coal in the market this is the coal for you to buy. Remember who keeps it for you.
